

Mean-variance trade-off (Section 8.4): product = high mean, high risk; average = modest mean, reliable

Product's mean explodes, but its typical (median) value collapses to 0

Chance the product is a total loss: $1 - 2^{-K}$
(the average never collapses like this)

